SHIPYARD MANAGER
EXAMPLE OF INDUSTRY

Samuel Smith, of Harlan & Hollingsworth Plant, Began at Bottom

Just about the time that the Smith boy, Sam, was thoroughly indoctrinated to long pants and tattered shoes—fully strung out by the three trips to the Washington school No. 1, his father suggested that it might be a good idea for his offspring to start rowing out his own canoe.

So after a long talk one evening in the Smith household, just at the outset of the summer school holidays were decided that the boy should go into the shipping department of the Harlan & Hollingsworth yards. It would be a good thing for the boy, was the verdict of the whole family, and so one bright spring morning in May, 1875, there strolled through the big iron gates of the H. & H. plant, a determined youth, determined to prove himself a fit member of the shipping department.

The sooner team includes several well-known players from various English teams. The players all have their suits now and practice is about to start, under the direction of C. Wright, manager.

MAY JOIN SHIPYARD LEAGUE

Gloucester Athletics Training for Soccer Team

Athletes at the Gloucester plant of the Pusey & Jones Company hope to get into the new Delaware Shipyards Athletic Association next year. This is the old Delaware River Shipyard Baseball League, which is to be reorganized to take in all athletic sports at the shipyards.

The Pusey & Jones Wilmington team is already in the league, but the Gloucester boys hope to join the solvent this season with an inter-departmental league of their own. With a soccer team on the way, these athletes think they will make advances in the league and will apply for membership at the proper time.

PLAN WEEK-END RIVER TRIP

Chester Storehouse Workers to Sail Down Delaware

Employed in the storehouse at the Sun Shipyard at Chester are preparing for a week-end trip down the Delaware River. M. H. Tompkins, one of their number, has placed his launch at their disposal for the occasion.

The start will be made about noon Saturday. The night will be spent at Wilmington. Early Sunday morning will find the young men and girls ashore and in dancing mood, while they can't do the fantastic. She just won't stop around. She says it is not the music, she may have heard it, but that it must be the boy. At any rate, it's hard on the fellows, for they all admire Miss Fulton.

Miss Helen Ford, librarian at the Sun yard, recently joined the dancers, and is in high favor with the boys.

EQUIP THE INDIANAPOLIS

Installation of Her Boilers Proves Difficult Task

Installing boilers in the cargo ship Indianapolis, the largest vessel launched in this country on Gloucester day at the Pusey & Jones Gloucesterville, is a big job. There are two boilers to go into this hull and there was no crane available at the yard with sufficient lift.

The biggest crane on the Delaware River, owned by the Cramp Company, was called on and is now ringing up its bell to indicate that it is in gear and is erected on a large barge. It is frequently in demand at the other shipyards along the river and always responds quickly. The Indianapolis is a 12,000-ton ship.

HIGHER PAY—There are two boilers to go into this hull and there was no crane available at the yard with sufficient lift.

This is an old saying with the men in No. 2 furnace of the Chester Shipbuilding plant, at Chester. The furnace men shape the plates as they are marked by the shiplifters and their work is harder and hotter than any time.

Albeit the men themselves men get to rest or eat when there is a "heat" plates are in the fire. Then they do both. Here is where health department comes in, for nothing. Any old thing goes down.

Which is the more interesting to see them eating or working is a question. But when the men spend their spare moments in would raise a storm. Perhaps he would, either. That's hardly a square deal for men who have to work as these do.

MUST EAT, DESPITE WAR
"Can't Swing Sledge on Empty Stomach," Say Furnace-men

"A man can't swing a forty-five-pound sledge on an empty stomach."
